Acknowledgments

We would like to thank LeAnn Fields at the University of Michigan Press for encouraging, supporting, and guiding this project from the beginning, and Marcia LaBrenz for her expert editorial assistance at the end. We also want to acknowledge our appreciation to the Theatre and Social Change Focus Group in the Association for Theatre in Higher Education, which provided many panel slots at conferences where we could test ideas and gauge interest in the issues. This book would not have been possible without our contributors' deep commitment and unending patience. Johns Hopkins University Press kindly granted permission to include a revised and expanded version of Bruce McConachie's essay, "Approaching the 'Structure of Feeling' in Grassroots Theatre," which first appeared in Theatre Topics 8:1, 33–53. © The Johns Hopkins University Press. Susan would like to thank Robert A. Alexander, founder of Living Stage, for his extraordinary pioneering work in community-based theater which changed her view of what theater meant and what it could do and for his friendship and willingness to share his vision with her. She would also like to thank her family for their faith that the book would be finished and their constant encouragement. Tobin would like to thank Outi Lahtinen for her editorial assistance.
