

Contents

Introduction	1
--------------	---

I

From Banana to Basho, or How One Japanese American Writer Learned Not to Write like John O'Hara	7
Multiculturalism: Living in the World (whose world?)	20

II

Difficulties of the Moment: Weil, Milosz, and Bakhtin	47
On Poetry and Politics: Brecht, Rich, and C. K. Williams	63
Splitting Open the Tradition: On Derek Walcott's "XXIII"	75
The Margins at the Center, the Center at the Margins: Asian American Poetry	82
Dim Sum Poetics	97

III

An Argument: On 1942 (An Interview with Daniel Kane)	105
A Multiplicity of Voices (An Interview with Lee Rossi)	113
The Colors of Desire (An Interview with William Walsh)	126

IV

A Note from Caliban: On Harold Bloom's Introduction to The Best of the Best American Poetry, 1988–1997	147
Where We've Been, Where We're Going	154