

Figures

Fig. 1.	Map of northern France about the year 1100	21
Fig. 2.	London, British Library MS Additional 24199, fol. 80 <sup>v</sup> “Heu quid peccaui” “Ergo nec ueram”	68
Fig. 3.	Cambridge University Library MS Gg.5.35, fol. 441 <sup>v</sup> “O admirabile ueneris” “Veni dilectissime”	88
Fig. 4.	Cambridge, Trinity College Library MS R.7.11, fol. 40 <sup>v</sup> “Fons erat irriguus”	175
Fig. 5.	Paris, Bibliothèque Nationale fonds latin 3719, fol. 36 <sup>r-v</sup> “De terre gremio”	208
Fig. 6.	Oxford, Bodleian Library MS Additional A.44, fol. 71 <sup>r</sup> “De terre gremio” “Bruma, grando, glacies”	217
Fig. 7.	Cambridge, University Library MS Ff.1.17(1), fol. 6 <sup>r</sup> “Dissoluta glatie”	232
Fig. 8.	London, British Library MS Arundel 384, fol. 233 <sup>v</sup> “A globo veteri”	262

- Fig. 9. Map of the sky looking ENE from Paris on the morning of May 20, 1162 showing celestial objects mentioned in “Dionei sideris” 277
- Fig. 10. Oxford, Bodleian Library MS Additional A.44, fol. 70<sup>r</sup> “Olim sudor herculis” 288
- Fig. 11. Cambridge, University Library MS Ff.1.17(1), fol. 7<sup>r</sup> “Olim sudor herculis” 289
- Fig. 12. London, Lambeth Palace Library MS 196, fol. ii<sup>r</sup> “Inaspectam nube tectam” 310