

Contents

Introduction: Eccentric Performance and Embodied Music in the Post-Soul Moment	1
ONE Becoming Post-Soul: Eartha Kitt, the Stranger, and the Melancholy Pleasures of Racial Reinvention	34
TWO Stevie Wonder's "Quare" Teachings and Cross-Species Collaboration in Journey through the Secret Life of Plants and Other Songs	60
THREE "Here's a Chance to Dance Our Way Out of Our Constrictions": P-Funk's Black Masculinity and the Performance of Imaginative Freedom	88
FOUR Michael Jackson, Queer World Making, and the Trans Erotics of Voice, Gender, and Age	116
FIVE "Feeling Like a Woman, Looking Like a Man, Sounding Like a No-No": Grace Jones and the Performance of "Strangé" in the Post-Soul Moment	142
SIX Funking toward the Future in Meshell Ndegeocello's The world has made me the man of my dreams	166
Epilogue: Janelle Monáe's Collective Vision	186
Notes	193
Bibliography	229
Index	243