

Acknowledgments

I wish to thank the many scholars who have kept me thinking about, defending, and revising my views on the eleventh-century dating of Beowulf and its manuscript context over the past fifteen years. Some I should single out for special help in discussions and correspondence are Peter Baker, Carl Berkhout, Michelle Brown, Patrick Conner, David Dumville, Allen Frantzen, the late Neil Ker, Katherine O'Brien O'Keefe, Andrew Prescott, Mary Richards, Fred Robinson, and Paul Szarmach. I owe a long-term debt to Allen Frantzen, who organized a session on this book for the 1982 convention of the Modern Language Association and invited me to serve as a respondent. I am also grateful to Andrew Prescott, curator of manuscripts at the British Library, for suggesting this revised edition in conjunction with the Electronic Beowulf project.

Acknowledgments are due the British Library Board for permission to quote from Cottonian MSS. Repairing and Binding Account 1839, Add. MS 24,932, Harley MS 7055, Cotton MS Vitellius A. xv, and Add. Charter 19,797; D.C. Heath and Company from the third edition of F. Klaeber, Beowulf and the Fight at Finnsburg (Lexington, MA: D.C. Heath & Co., 1950); Columbia University Press from the Anglo-Saxon Poetic Records; the Council of the Early English Text Society from the Zupitza-Davis facsimile of Beowulf (vol. 245, 1959, reprint 1967); Oxford, Bodleian Library, from MS Add. D. 82 and MS Junius 105; Rosenkilde and Bagger from Kemp Malone's facsimile edition of The Nowell Codex (Early English Manuscripts in Facsimile, vol. 12); Oxford University Press from Alistair Campbell's Old English Grammar (1959), N.R. Ker's Catalogue of Manuscripts containing Anglo-Saxon (1957, reprint 1991); and Kenneth Sisam's Studies in the History of Old English Literature (1953); and Cambridge University Press for permission to reprint "The state of the Beowulf manuscript, 1882–1983," from Anglo-Saxon England

Beowulf and the Beowulf Manuscript

13 (1983): 24–42. A Summer Stipend from the National Endowment for the Humanities in 1995 and a grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation in 1995–96 provided opportunities to recheck all of the backlit readings in the course of digitizing them for the Electronic Beowulf. Finally, I am obliged to David Way, director of British Library Publications, and Ellen Bauerle and Christina Milton, Acquisitions Editor and Managing Editor, respectively, of the University of Michigan Press for their good work in seeing this work through their presses.
