

CONTENTS

1	INTRODUCTION
9	CAMILO VERGARA’S DETROIT by Robert Fishman
27	GAME CHANGERS
33	American Acropolis: The End of an Idea
61	URBAN FABRIC
61	Traces of Past Grandeur
73	Neighborhood Landmarks
79	This Is No Rome: Ruins and Desolate Cityscapes
113	New Life for Former Banks
118	To Reach the Lost: Churches Where Everybody Is Somebody

133	SPIRITS OF MOTOR CITY: FOLK SIGNS AND MURALS
135	In Detroit, Jesus Is the Only Star
142	Business-Oriented Signs
156	Celebrating Black Heroes and Heroines
163	“It Has Nothing to Do with Race”: Snow White, Snow Green, Snow Brown
166	“Gone but Not Forgotten”: Memorials
171	“You All Came Here and Just Marked Up Our Entire City”
181	Brightmoor: The Search for a Bucolic Utopia by the Rouge River
189	African American Artists: History, Remembrance, Turf

205

PERSISTENT BLIGHT, CONCENTRATED:

AN ABBREVIATED STREET GUIDE

210

Inner-City Billboards

214

Extinguished Neon Signs

218

Street Vendors

224

Doing Business Behind Plexiglass

237

Oases Amidst Desolation:
Detroit’s New Architecture

251

“Farm City”: Replacing Blight with Beauty

256

Detroiters

268

“In the Ghettohood”: Things Get Better Slowly

281

CONCLUSION

281

Detroit’s Evolving Ruins

293

Giving Back to the Community

294

No Dry Bones

297

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Hazen S. Pingree (1841–1901), “The Idol of the People,” elected Mayor of Detroit four times. Grand Circus Park, Woodward Ave., Detroit, 1995